MONTHLY MESSAGE

For those who don't know me, my name is Beth Cassidy. I am the first person you see when you walk through the door of the Senior Center; the person reminding you to sign-in. I also answer any questions you may have and direct you to the activities. I have worked at UMSSC for 16 years. Sometimes it is hard for me to imagine that I have been here for 16 years. However, I knew from day one, this is where I wanted to be.

Some of my responsibilities are making sure people sign in, answering the telephone, and taking your memberships and casino trip registrations. Last, but not least, one of my favorite things to do is giving tours of our beautiful new center.

I am grateful to the caring people I have worked with through the years. They have always been encouraging, kind and supportive. Every day I have the opportunity to say hello to old friends and to meet wonderful new friends, the majority of who become members of our senior center family.

All of you have a special place in my heart. You make me look forward to my next 16 years working here at the Upper Merion Senior Service Center.

Thank you,

Beth Cassidy

KEEPING SENIORS INFORMED

WHAT ARE THE CATEGORIES OF EXERCISE?

Is there a difference between physical activity and exercise? Both are voluntary activities that you do to burn calories. Physical activity is anything you do to get your body moving. Examples are walking the dog, raking leaves or using the vacuum. Exercise is a form of physical activity that is specifically planned, structured and is repetitive. Examples are aerobic classes, weight lifting, line dancing or chair exercise classes.

Both are important for one's physical and mental health. Being physically active can help you continue to do most of the things you enjoy and to stay independent as you age. Regular physical activity can produce long term health benefits. The benefits you gain will depend on your starting point and how much effort you put into it.

Exercises fall into four main categories: endurance, flexibility, strength and balance. Endurance or aerobic activities increase the heart rate and breathing. They can improve the health of your heart, circulation and respiratory system. Examples include: brisk walking, dancing, swimming, tennis and jogging. The concept is to gradually increase the level of whatever you are doing. If you experience effects such as labored breathing or a very increased pulse rate, back up and work for a more gradual increase. Listen to your body, but don't give up on yourself. Keep breathing throughout all activities.

Flexibility is needed for many everyday activities. Can you turn your head and shoulders when leaving a parking space? Can you bend down to tie your shoe laces? Can you reach the top shelf to reach an item? Flexibility exercises focus on all muscles from your fingers to your toes. It would be advisable to have some guidance for safety and best results, but there are some things you can do. Turn your head from side to side as far as you can. Do shoulder shrugs by lifting and lowering the shoulder. When seated, flex and extend the feet and also bend forward toward the knees, then sit back up. Keep breathing throughout the activities.

Strength is needed to lift and carry grocery bags or laundry baskets or to pick up and carry small grandchildren. Again, it is best to have some guidance in strength training. Improving your strength can make it easier for you to get up from a chair, climb steps, open jars, sweep the patio. Tools to use to increase strength are weights, soup cans and stretchy bands. A repetition (or rep) is one full movement of an exercise. A set is ten to fifteen reps. Exercises are designed for sets of muscles such as biceps, quadriceps, calves, etc. Remember to breathe while doing them.

Balance is vital in helping to prevent falls and to enable you to move quickly when needed. The previously discussed activities involving the lower body will help with balance. Again, guided activities would be advised to learn the most effective strategies. Our Senior Center (via Main Line Health) has provided a series of classes, twice in recent years. Meantime one could practice a few activities which could be helpful. When brushing your teeth, hold onto the sink with one hand and stand on one foot for twenty seconds, then switch to the other foot. Continue throughout the time you are brushing. You could do this in the kitchen while the coffee is brewing. Also, hold onto a sturdy chair and stand on one foot release your grip and see if you can balance. Always be cautious when endeavoring to do balance activities.

Anticipate how you can incorporate some of these types of exercises into your daily plans. Endurance, flexibility and balance exercises can be done five or six days a week. Strength training is usually done two to three times per week, but not on consecutive days. Do what is BEST FOR YOU, but be consistent in your efforts. You will benefit from your efforts.
